

Short Bio

Jason Resendez is a nationally recognized expert and advocate in family policy, dedicated to transforming how society values care. As President and CEO of the National Alliance for Caregiving (NAC), he leads research, policy, and systems change efforts on behalf of the more than 63 million family caregivers across America.

Before joining NAC, Jason was the founding executive director of the UsAgainstAlzheimer's Center for Brain Health Equity, where he pioneered the concept of brain health equity. Through peer-reviewed research, public health partnerships, and policy work, he challenged long-held assumptions in the field. His impact earned him recognition from STAT News in 2023 as one of the most consequential leaders in health and medicine.

Jason is a trusted voice in Washington. He has testified before the U.S. Senate and is frequently quoted by outlets including The New York Times, The Washington Post, The Wall Street Journal, and NPR. PBS's Next Avenue also named him one of America's top influencers in aging, alongside figures such as Michael J. Fox and former Surgeon General Dr. Vivek Murthy.

Long Bio

Jason Resendez is a nationally recognized expert and advocate in family policy, dedicated to transforming how society values care. As President and CEO of the National Alliance for Caregiving (NAC), he leads research, policy, and systems change efforts on behalf of the more than 63 million family caregivers across America.

Jason is a trusted voice in Washington. He has testified before the U.S. Senate and is frequently quoted by outlets including The New York Times, The Washington Post, The Wall Street Journal, and NPR. He has advised federal agencies and organizations working to improve the health and well-being of American families, among them the National Institute on Aging, the National Academy of Medicine, the Administration for Community Living, and the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute. He also served as a volunteer policy advisor to President Joe Biden's presidential campaign.

His work has earned wide recognition. STAT News named him one of the most consequential leaders in health and medicine in 2023, and PBS's Next Avenue included him among America's top influencers in aging, alongside Michael J. Fox and former Surgeon General Dr. Vivek Murthy.

Before joining NAC, Jason was the founding executive director of the UsAgainstAlzheimer's Center for Brain Health Equity, where he pioneered the concept of brain health equity through peer-reviewed research, public health partnerships, and policy work. He began his career at UnidosUS and at the education arm of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), two of the nation's leading civil rights organizations.

JASON RESENDEZ OFFICIAL BIO AND HEADSHOT

His advocacy for the Latino community has been honored with the National Hispanic Council on Aging's Service Award for Caregiving, the LULAC Presidential Medal of Honor, and the HerMANO Award from MANA, A National Latina Organization.

A native of South Texas, Jason is a graduate of Georgetown University.